2. Claims 1-19 remain pending in this application.
3. Applicant has elected the fourth product which is a yeast belonging to Kluyveromyces.

The restriction requirement is in accordance with PCT rules.

The arguments have been deemed not to be persuasive and the statement pertaining to the a single general inventive concept and examined the full application as recited:

The Examiner, citing PCT Rule 13.1, contends that Groups I-XXXVIII do not relate to a single general inventive concept because they lack the same or corresponding special technical features. However, Applicants traverse the Restriction Requirement on the grounds that the Office has not applied the same standard of unity of invention as the International Preliminary Examination Authority. The Authority did not take the position that unity of invention was lacking in the unemotional application and examined all claims together (see the international Preliminary Examination Report appended herewith).

Attached is the statement of "LACK OF UNITY OF INVENTION" SHEET B, which states the following:

"Therefore the application lacks unity a posteriori."

As searching the other invention(s) would have caused a major additional searching effort, only the first invention was search."

Thus, the restriction as stated is proper and is in accordance with PCT rules.

Claims 2-19 as well as the other species in Claim 1 have been withdrawn from consideration.

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

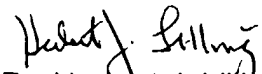

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by US 4,251,519 which teaches a Kluyveromyces within the broad claimed language.

5. The references cited on the two 1449 sheets, dated April 12, 2002 and March 29, 2003, have been initialed.

6. Claim 1 is not allowed drawn to the elected invention.
